Grandparents love spending time with their grandchildren. If you meet a grandparent, they may break out the photos of their grandchildren, or of the day they spent at the zoo or lake. You and your grandchildren have given each other precious memories, like walking hand in hand.

Urban Wildlife Coalition

Living in a neighborhood where urban wildlife is abundant sometimes means an encounter with an animal that has been injured or orphaned. It is heartbreaking and frustrating when we want to help, but do not have information about what to do or where to turn. Much depends upon the particular animal, time of year, and type of injury, but here are a few tips to use in a pinch. C-i
